Addicted Michigan: Narcan kits help fight back against the rise in fentanyl abuse.

Anyone can and should administer this nasal spray if they suspect any overdose. If no opioids were involved, Narcan would not harm the person and won't have any effect. Since we know that many substances are now mixed with fentanyl, often without the user's knowledge, it is even more important that people don't use it alone and have someone nearby who carries Narcan.

How to Administer Narcan Video Below:

What are Syringe Services Programs (SSPs)?

Syringe Services Programs, often called SSPs, are community-based prevention programs. SSPs provide a range of health services, and they provide a lifeline to those struggling with substance abuse. Comprehensive SSPs offer patients vaccinations and testing for diseases, referrals to treatment for substance use disorder and other diseases (such as viral hepatitis and HIV), and sterile injection equipment to prevent the transmission of infectious diseases.

Scientists, including those at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), have studied SSPs for more than 30 years and found that comprehensive SSPs benefit communities.
